17.3. Detailed reasons as to how the scheme will be beneficial to shareholders of RML.

The various benefits available to the public shareholders of RML post consolidation of business are provided in detail below:

1. Currently the three companies which are part of the merger are all within the same auto component manufacturing business. However, they are housed under three different entities.

The proposed reorganization brings together all listed entities under a consolidated platform of auto component manufacturing and are subject to same industry risk. Consolidation into one entity allows the public shareholders to participate in the growth story of a larger diversified auto component player.

2. The aftermarket business of the three companies are being undertaken individually through their own teams and distribution channels for serving the customers. The integration of all the aftermarket business under a single entity will open up growth opportunities for the combined entity. The pooling of resources through consolidated business development efforts will result in increased revenue.
3. Merging the entities will help better utilisation of assets across the companies resulting in optimum capex spending and enhanced capacity utilisation. The merger would lead to improved availability of capital, which could be employed efficiently to pursue growth opportunities of the combined business. Merging of businesses will enable more co-ordinated and comprehensive management with greater focus and attention and improve organizational capabilities from pooling of human capital. The merged entity will thus benefit from increased operational, financial and organizational efficiencies.

4. The merger will help achieve cost synergies through increased product offerings, uniform approach on customer engagement and service delivery, supply chain management, procurement and optimization of support & administration functions.

Thus, the consolidation of business is expected to benefit the public shareholders of the RML.

17.4. Rationale for addition of promoters pursuant to scheme in RML.

By virtue of share exchange ratio mentioned in Para 10.1. of the Scheme, the Promoters of Transferor Companies 1 & 2 automatically receive shares in the Transferee Company.

The following Promoters of REVL & RBL will be forming part of Promoter & Promoter Group of RML:

Sl. No.	Name	Remarks
1.	Nisshinbo Holdings Inc.	Promoter of Rane Brake Lining Limited
2.	Ganesh L & Meenakshi Ganesh	Promoter of Rane Brake Lining Limited & Rane Engine Valve Limited
3.	Lakshman L & Pushpa Lakshman	Promoter of Rane Brake Lining Limited & Rane Engine Valve Limited
4.	Pushpa Lakshman & Lakshman L	Promoter of Rane Brake Lining Limited & Rane Engine Valve Limited

17.5. Impact of scheme on revenue generating capacity of RML.

The Scheme will have a positive effect on RML (Transferee Company) and will result in an increase in revenue and profitability due to the following contributing factors:

- i) Aggregation of the business of the Participating companies will lead to increase in topline. The combined entity will be able to access the market and bid for further business as a larger entity.

- ii) RML has better access to export markets. The combined entity will thus be able to tap the export market with additional product offerings from the friction material division and engine valve division.
 - iii) Increased contribution by the aftermarket business in the combined entity, wherein the different businesses can rely upon each other's dealer base to push products in varied geographies and regions.
 - iv) The higher sales growth will result in better absorption of fixed costs resulting in improved profitability.
 - v) The sales growth will also make it possible for better utilisation of fixed assets and as a consequence of the above factors translate to an increase in Free Cash flow.
 - vi) In addition to the above, the combined entity will benefit from operating leverage, because of scale and economies in direct/indirect material procurement and logistics costs due to better negotiation power. This benefit is expected to translate into increase in profitability because of savings in administrative, procurement and other fixed costs.
